PREFACE

This Index is a product of several years of hard work by the many student members of the staff of the Mississippi Law Journal. Clarence E. Morgan, Jr., in 1947, was the first Index Editor of the Journal. Among those men who have directed since that time the work, as either Index Editor or as an Editor, are William H. Bizell, Lampkin H. Butts, William F. Winter, Arthur B. Custy, Frank E. Shannahan, Jr., Roland D. Marble, Horace Watkins, Robert J. Hobby, Francis B. Stevens, George E. Estes, Jr., W. F. Goodman, Jr., and the present officers of the Journal who have assembled in final form all of the material: Joe R. Fancher, Jr., Editor; W. O. Carter, Business Manager; and Carl E. Guernsey, Index Editor. This work began at a time when professors Ford W. Hall and F. Hodge O'Neal were faculty advisers of the Journal staff and continued at other times with Huey B. Howerton, Jr., and the writer in that capacity.

The job of directing this project was the responsibility of the above men, and perhaps others not shown by our records. But the task of doing the detailed compilation of the various tables for each volume was in part also that of the many regular staff members of the Journal over a period since 1947, who generously and willingly gave their time and ability to this Index. To all of these, the Law School and the Mississippi Law Journal wants to express its gratitude. We also want to thank Dean Robert J. Farley of the Law School for his continuing encouragement and assistance in the publication of the Journal and of this Index. And over the years the Mississippi State Bar has been most generous in appropriating annually a sum which defrays a substantial part of the cost of publishing the regular quarterly issues of the Journal, and therefore makes its publication possible.

With reference to this Index, the Law Journal is particularly appreciative of the willingness of the University of Mississippi and of its Law School to underwrite and finance the cost of preparing and printing the Index. Without that financial aid, this book would not be in print.

In 1938 a forty-eight page Index to the first ten volumes of the Mississippi Law Journal was published. However, since that time an additional ten volumes have been issued, and the Journal's coverage of legal developments in Mississippi and elsewhere has broadened in both quantity and subject matter. In addition, it was thought that there is a need for more detailed and additional kinds of index tables.

The present Index is in part the result of an attempt to meet these needs and problems. It covers the entire first twenty volumes of the Mississippi Law Journal, and is not supplementary to the 1938 Index. On the contrary, it is designed to supersede it. More importantly, it is an attempt to increase the value of the Journal to lawyers, judges and scholars in Mississippi and elsewhere. The Journal contains within its pages the broadest and most detailed analysis of Mississippi law in existence. This material can be of great value to the practitioner, judge, scholar, and public officials of this and other states. It has been somewhat neglected in the past, largely because there was no efficient method of getting to it. It is the hope of the University of Mississippi, its Law School, and the student members of the Mississippi Law Journal staff that this Index will furnish an easy and convenient key to these analytical articles and items on Mississippi law, and also to the numerous other discussions of national and international legal subjects.
